Salina Native Serves as Congressional Intern in Moran's Washington, D.C. Office

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Congressman Jerry Moran announced that Tommy Struble of Salina is serving as a congressional intern in his Washington, D.C. office this summer. Struble is a 2007 graduate of Salina High School Central and will graduate in the spring of 2011 from the University of Kansas. Struble is the son of Roger Struble and Jane Gates of Salina.

“Congressional internships offer Kansas students a great opportunity to learn about Congress and the legislative process,” Moran said. “Tommy is doing important work for Kansans and gaining valuable experience that will help him in the future.”

Struble is currently an undergraduate student at the University of Kansas, pursuing bachelor degrees in political science and psychology. After graduation, he hopes to attend law school.

“Working for Congressman Moran has been an extremely rewarding experience,” Struble said. “After studying government in school, it has been especially interesting to find out how the system works from the inside. The lessons I have learned and the valuable work experience I have gained will continue to serve me well throughout my lifetime.”

Struble assists Moran with legislative and administrative duties on behalf of the people of Kansas.

Kansans interested in applying for a Congressional internship in Washington, D.C., Hays, Hutchinson and Salina, can learn more by visiting Congressman Jerry Moran's website: www.jerrymoran.house.gov.
